

MISCELLANY

"There is a Name."
 There is a name I dare not breathe,
 Although it once was dear,
 They deem my linen spotless now,
 And no deception here;
 And yet like sun-set's rosy flush,
 My cheek is hot with shame,
 They ask me—but I will not breathe
 My washer-woman's name!
 Last night, while in the mazy dance,
 My neat foot trod the floor,
 They little deemed my manly neck
 A paper collar bore.
 A "Bi hard" searched my heaving breast,
 And yet who dares to blame?
 Her bill's not paid—I cannot breathe
 My washer-woman's name!

A despatch from Fort Delaware, dated November 24, says: "Governor Frank Lubbock, of Texas, left here this morning for his home, via New York. Last night, while in conversation with him, he remarked that since he has been a prisoner he has been guarded and held familiar intercourse with the private soldier from eleven different Northern States, and had he known as much of them before the war as since, his conscience would never have allowed him to leave the Union. He believed his experience while a prisoner, if he were allowed to tell it, cannot fail to be of some service to Texas, towards bringing her back home to her faithful allegiance. We believe a little Fort Delaware loyalty, such as is administered by our generous commander, Brigadier-General A. Schoeff, has done him, like it has many others, not a little good. He believes he leaves here, to-day, as good a Union man as he ever was a rebel. The scene at the wharf this morning, while shaking warmly the arms of many 'Yankee blue coats,' with the 'God bless you for your kindness to me,' was impressive indeed. He leaves here about the most popular transmogrified rebel that ever left this school of reform."

Burning of the Museum.
LETTER FROM MR. BARNUM.
 New York, July 14, 1865.
MESSRS. HERRING & CO.—GENTLEMEN:
 Though the destruction of the American Museum has proved a serious loss to myself and the public, I am happy to verify the old adage, that "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and, consequently, congratulate you that your well known safes have again demonstrated their superior fire-proof qualities in an ordeal of unusual severity.
 The safe you made for me some time ago was in the office of the Museum, on the second floor, back part of the building, and in the hottest of the fire.
 After twenty-four hours of trial, it was found among the debris, and on opening it this day has yielded up its contents in very good order—books, papers, policies of insurance, bank bills, all in condition for immediate use, and a noble commentary on the trustworthiness of Herring's Fire-Proof Safe. Yours truly, P. T. BARNUM.
